OUR FOREIGN LETTER.

London—Bingen—Featherbeds, &c.

LEIPZIG, GERMANY, August 24, 1872.

Correspondence Interior Journal.

"The shades of night were falling fast

when our boat sped by the Lorelei, on whose summit the myth tells us the beautiful Syren sat, and by her charming music and beauty lured the unsuspecting sailor on the treacherous rocks. The Rhine is very narrow at this place and runs with great rapidity, and its shallowness has caused the destruction of many boats, which no doubt gave rise to the myth that an evil spirit presides over the place. A wonderful echo can be heard when a gun is discharged. I was enraptured under the Lorelei and its legends until a train came dashing through the clouds behind. Bingen, sweet Bingen on the Rhine, sleeping quietly in its little valley came into view. At this place I was entertained by a young Mr. E., whom

I met on the boat, and who had been a truant from home for many years. On the wharf stood his old gray-headed father and mother and his young sister anxiously awaiting the arrival of their long-lost son and brother. After partaking of the hospitality so kindly offered to a stranger, and rejoicing with those who rejoiced, I took a stroll on the river bank to drink in the beauties of the place by moonlight. I descended a little knoll that commanded a view of the Rhine

whose waters were now and then ruffled

by a passing boat, and the sloping hills whose sides were covered with vines which promised a rich flow of wine. Bingen, the town of song and story, and the Mosel Tower whose old decaying porchises permitted a few straggling moonbeams to enter.

The Mosel Tower was now still and dark but in days gone by, as now seated on its little island, its walls had rounded to the merry peals of knights, and at times felt the shock of contending warriors. Southey, the poet, has made it ever famous by his beautiful account of the legend. Everything was so lovely,

so unlike anything I had seen before that I did not wonder that it had been termed

"Sweet Bingen." My memory went back to the days of childhood when I had heard so many little boys in a singing song about,

"A soldier of the legion lay dying in Aigiers,

There was want of woman's nursing,

There was want of woman's tears, &c."

This poem has given the American chil-dran much trouble, and as the birch was suspended over their heads to force them to recite it, they care very little about the soldier, or where he died, and very few of them would appreciate "Bingen, Sweet Bingen on the Rhine." Everything harmonized to enhance the beauty of the scene before me, and it was very late when I returned to my hotel.

A polite Frenchified, swallow-tailed waiter bowed me into my room and then bowed himself out again. All the waiters in Germany wear swallow-tail broadcloth coats, part their hair in the middle,

and on Sunday sport lavender kids and fancy canes, and some of them would furnish Darwin the connecting link between the human race and the monkey, substantiating his theory without the shadow of a doubt. As soon as I entered my room the thought struck me that the bed looked rather bulky, and I

"I cannot either conditionally or unconditionally support General Grant for the Presidency."—J. P. Banks.

"Unquestionably, General Grant deserves impeachment for high crimes and misdemeanors, rather than a re-election."—Charles Sumner.

"The time will come, and I trust in God the opportunity too, when the world will see that you are not a Democrat in pursuing the course you have, and that I am no less a Republican because I accept your nomination."—Greely.

WHAT THE BOURBOONS DID.

As our readers know the Bourbon Democracy, calling themselves the "straightouts," met in convention last Tuesday at Louisville, for the purpose of nominating candidate for President and Vice President of the United States. After much blowing, puffing and advertising, in which they were ably seconded and materially aided by the Radical party all over the country, about three hundred of them met to show how great an ass each could make of himself. The whole affair was concocted and carried out by the Grant party, for the purpose, if possible, of crippling the "ground-swell" which has so abundantly manifested itself in favor of Greeley for President. In doing their own party, so fully and fearfully dismembered, the Radicals determined to leave no stone unturned to accomplish the end they so greatly longed and hoped for. Radical Congressmen freely gave the use of their names to circulate the Bourbon documents, which of itself is a base fraud upon the Government, and a species of deception and downright rascality, and ought to be sufficient to damn any party and to show the spirit of the Grantites. Radical postmasters took great pains to distribute mail matter which had a hue of Bourbonism on the outside wrapper, and have shown wonderful skill and kindness in posting in conspicuous places any and everything which had a tendency to draw public attention to the Bourbon conclave at Louisville. But then we know they were commanded to do so, and they dared not refuse to obey the behests of their lords and masters.

Well the Bourbons met—and did what? Nominated a man who positively declines to accept the doubtful honor, and telegraphed the despondent members of the Grant side-show. And thus ends one of the tamest, most insignificant political farces this great country has ever witnessed. Before adjournment, however, they determined that in the event of the death of Mr. O'Connor, or his refusal to accept, the Committee of their "party" should have power and full authority to fill the vacancy by their own appointment. Now that Charles O'Connor has declined, it is almost certain that said committee will put in the field Mr. John Quincy Adams, of Massachusetts, for President, and a Mr. Lyons, from somewhere, as Vice-President. If they fail to accept, then we presume the vigilant and determined committee will keep on hunting until they find some two men who will accept, simply from a willingness and desire to see their names handed down to future generations as candidates for the two highest offices in the gift of the American people.

Odd Fellows' Celebration.

The Grand Lodge of Kentucky of this popular and thriving order, will meet in the city of Lexington on the 22nd of October next, and continue several days. The Odd Fellows of Lexington have also made arrangements to have a grand and imposing procession on the 24th of October, accompanied with a magnificent dinner at Odd Fellows Opera House in Lexington. All the lodges and brethren of the Order in good standing in the State, are cordially invited to be present and take part in the exercises. No member will be excluded from participating in the procession, whatever his degree may be. Half-fare tickets over all the lines of travel will be sold, and the hotels of the city have reduced their fare to visitors to $2 and $2.50 per day. We hope to be there ourselves, and to meet many of brethren there from this and adjoining counties.

A Ticker.

The Lexington (Mo.) Courier, "the great white man's paper," the first paper in America that advocated the nomination of Horace Greeley for the Presidency—speaks in the following flattering terms of our little interior sheet:

"The Interior Journal, published at Stanford, Ky., is the best State paper, excepting only the Courier-Journal, published in the State."

Vermont Election.

The recent election in the State of Vermont, has resulted in the usual Radical majority. Local causes had much to do with the matter, and the best informed politicians assert that Greeley and Brown will receive a much larger vote than the Liberal-Democratic ticket received, on the recent occasion.

The opening of the Grand Louisville Exposition took place on Thursday evening last with some twenty thousand persons present. The expectations of even the officers and directors were more than realized.

The Henderson News has a novel campaign proposition. It will be furnished to all non-subscribers who desire until after the November election free if Horace Greeley is not elected; if he is elected they have to take the paper for one year paying for it in advance.

The committee appointed for that purpose, returned charges and specifications against Rev. G. H. Robertson to the Louisville Presbytery at its meeting on Tuesday last. The trial will take place on the 17th. Mr. Robertson declares his intention not to appear before the Presbytery.

A Mayville bachelor received his shirt from his washerwoman, and while trying to put it on discovered it had short sleeves, was low in the neck, long in the skirt, and had ruffled edges with lace inserting. He didn't understand the affair, and sent it back for explanations. It belonged to a female patron of the washerwoman, who had got things mixed.

THE RADICAL NOMINEE.

Mr. C. F. Burnam, the nominee of the Radicals for Congress in this District, is said to be a very nice sort of a man—a scholar, scholarly, but does not enjoy good health. As a lawyer, he stands among the first in his vicinity, as a politician, he has never achieved success, and as a stump orator, he will be no match for our standard bearer, Judge Durham. His defeat is a foregone conclusion, and it does seem to us that the Radical party made a great mistake in giving him the nomination. Why? Because there were others in their ranks who could and would have made a much more vigorous and effective campaign, and who are better fitted, in point of health, oratory, and popularity to do service for their sinking cause. Mr. Curtis F. Burnam is an aristocrat by birth, education, and practice. He is not suited to meet the people at the hustings and upon a social plane. He is reserved, cold, callous. Such a man is not the one to win converts to any cause, or press men by the power of his popularity, into the camp of his party, or inspire them with enthusiasm to fight under his banner.

W. O. Bradley, Esq., one of his opponents for the nomination, is a different man. It is claimed too, that young Bradley was badly treated at the convention, and that he was really the strongest man in it. Of this we know but little, however, but we do know that Will Bradley would have made a much better name than Mr. Burnam. As an orator he has few equals in the State of his age, and as a stump-speaker he is calculated to win the applause of his friends, while even his opponents do not fail to accord him praise. For our part, we are in favor of young men who show themselves worthy and well qualified; in opposition to those old party fossils who think all wisdom is centered in themselves, and who think young men are only fit to vote get up barbecues and raise flags.

The Importation of Negroes into Indiana.

R. W. G. writes to the Courier-Journal from Shelby City the following: "The exodus of negroes from this section of the country to Louisville to work on the canal is really astonishing. Numbers have left for that point and purpose. What their rulers will do with them is not difficult to conjecture, after your timely counsel and warning to the Indians."

Public Speaking.

Albert B. Willis, Assistant Elector for the State at large, will address the people as follows:

Paris, Saturday, September 7.

Richmond, Monday, September 9.

Winchester, Wednesday, September 11.

Lexington, Saturday, September 13.

Covington, Monday, September 16.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Connecticut is safe for Greeley by about 10,000 majority as things now stand.

The Liberal Republicans and Democrats of Michigan have nominated Hon. Austin Blair for Governor.

Blanton Duncan called Dr. Keller, of Louisville a liar the other day and the Doctor "put a small head on him" in return.

The Democrats and Liberals of Missouri nominated Hon. Silas Woodson, Democrat, of Buchanan county, for Governor.

President Grant is holding up the Russian mission as a prize to be contended for by ambitious Radical aspirants in the Presidential campaign.

"Brick Pomeroy," B. D. Conventioneer, who has "engaged 40 rooms at the Galt House," was sold out by the sheriff a week or two since at La Crosse.

Senator Sumner says: "From all I can learn, and my correspondence covers a good deal of country, I am disposed to conclude that Greeley and Brown will be elected by an overwhelmingly large majority."

A delegate from Arkansas to the B. D. side show was arrested upon his arrival in Louisville on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretences. Blanton generously paid the bill of $120, in order to have a quorum.

Albert Pike's letter charging that Henry Wilson was a Know-Nothing, and as such attended the Philadelphia Convention in 1855 remains unchallenged. A letter is going the rounds purporting to have been written by Wilson lately to some German in Brooklyn, denying the fact, but Wilson pronounces it a forgery. So the Republican candidate for the Vice-Presidency dares not deny that he was a member of a Know-Nothing lodge. Put that in your pipe, Pat!

Senator Trumbull, who has just returned from Maine, says the election which will be held on the 9th inst. will be very close. The Grant party are making most desperate efforts to insure success, and have sent on their best speakers and have furnished all necessary funds to further any project suggested by their State Committee. Many of the leaders claim that they will carry the State by an increased majority, while others admit that the majority will be reduced.

Paying Tribute.

Some of the ancient kings and tyrants of the world, in other ages, raised the greater part of their revenues by exacting "tribute" from their subjects. To such an extent was this nefarious law carried, that the subject was compelled to pay tribute upon almost everything he bought, sold, used or gave away. Our own revenue law is a nearer approach to this ancient tyrannical law than anything else; but it is not of this kind of "tribute" we wish now to speak. The custom still prevails in many countries beside our own, but not to such a burdensome degree. It is "of and concerning" private individuals we wish to make mention.

There are petty tyrants among ordinary civilians—men as exacting as ever Nero or Cligula was. These men demand that tribute be paid to them. They exact it at the hands of their fellow-men; and the only passport to their kindly affections, is found in an abject and absolute obedience to their demands for "tribute."

True, it is not a money tribute which they require; but homage, flattery—a looking-up-to-must be given them, else they are "cut off" from their list of "friends." Such men desire to lead in their particular calling. They will not be led. All men within the radius of their influence must bow before them in solemn reverence.

They demand that you look to them for advice, for counsel, for everything which has a tendency to ameliorate your sufferings, or promote your welfare.

If you stoop to this, you are at once taken into full fellowship. You are by them esteemed a friend and worthy subject.

Then, your "king" will not, for a moment, brook the slightest rebellion against his powerful not; for if you exhibit anything like rebellion, at once you are cut off from the king's revenues, the king's affections, and are out-fared, so far as his high prerogative can accomplish that object.

These "tribute" people are in every community, and among all classes and trades and callings and professions. Even the sacred pulpit contains them. The arts, sciences and learned professions have them. Every intelligent man and woman can call to mind some one or more persons whose pictures we have attempted to draw.

The Importation of Negroes into Indiana.

R. W. G. writes to the Courier-Journal from Shelby City the following: "The exodus of negroes from this section of the country to Louisville to work on the canal is really astonishing. Numbers have left for that point and purpose. What their rulers will do with them is not difficult to conjecture, after your timely counsel and warning to the Indians."

"Shire-Towns."

A gentleman from Madison county told us that Mr. Burnam, the Radical candidate for Congress against Judge Durham, told him the other day that he did not intend to address the people of the district outside of the "shire-towns."

Do you hear that—ye who dwell in country localities, remote from your "shire-towns"? Does Mr. Burnam think the country people unworthy of being addressed by a denizen from a "shire-town"? One would really suppose so, from the declaration made by the gentleman who seeks the suffrage of the people, regardless of whether they live in humble cottages among the vales and mountains of the district; or, like himself, in a lordly mansion of a "shire-town."

Come Mr. Burnam—come down from your lofty exile and mingle with all of us, whether we dress in purple and fine linen, or in butternut and grey homespun. Leave the "shire-towns" to take care of themselves, and go out into the highways and hedges, and tell the people who and what you are.

Livingstone and Stanley.

That Mr. Stanley, the bold and enterprising reporter sent out under the auspices and at the expense of the New York Herald, found Dr. David Livingstone in the wilds of Central Africa, can no longer admit of a reasonable doubt. Stanley could not possibly deceive the entire civilized, scientific and geographical world. Honor to whom honor is due. Mr. Stanley is immortal and that is glory enough.

The cholera is reported raging in India, and the number of fatal cases are enormous. Thousands have died in the city of Lahore, and several other larger cities.

The ex-Empress Carlotta, widow of Maximilian, of Mexico, was reported to be dying at Vienna, on Thursday, the 30th ult.
